

SONNETEER

BRAND USB

Turn your computer into a high quality juke box using a Bard USB transmitter plugged into any of the standard USB sockets on it and send high quality music to either a Bard receiver plugged into you favourite music system or a Bard amplifier plugged straight into your loudspeakers. The Bard receiver just plugs into your music system as if plugging in a CD player or tape deck (remember them?) and as before, press play and you have music filling your living space in the way it should. It looks a little like a memory stick the Bard USB will send any music you play on your computer, be it a PC or MAC. All you have to do is plug in and play as it is software and format independent. This means that it doesn't matter what software you are using or the format your music is stored in, it plays. Simply plug the Bard USB into the USB port on your PC or MAC or even laptop as shown and play music from your computer and send it wirelessly to any one of your Bard receivers in your home. Play music from your hard drive, the Internet or your CDs or DVDs and send them wire free to your main hi-fi system and to your other music systems or Bard amplifiers in any number of rooms in your house.